The first of these is the fact that the world is not a uniform whole, but a collection of many different parts, each with its own characteristics and laws.
 This is the principle of diversity, and it is the basis of all knowledge. Without it, we could not understand the world as it is, or the mind as it works.
 The second principle is that of continuity. The world is not a collection of isolated facts, but a continuous whole, in which every part is connected to every other part. This is the principle of unity, and it is the basis of all science. Without it, we could not understand the world as a whole, or the mind as a unified whole.

The third principle is that of causality. Every event in the world has a cause, and every cause has an effect. This is the principle of causality, and it is the basis of all philosophy. Without it, we could not understand the world as a system, or the mind as a system. The fourth principle is that of freedom. The world is not a collection of facts, but a collection of possibilities. This is the principle of freedom, and it is the basis of all art. Without it, we could not understand the world as a creation, or the mind as a creative power.
